2023 YEAR IN REVIEW

The Eastside median sales price was down by 4% as we closed out 2023. This is in large part due to the interest rates. It certainly isn't supply and demand: Total listings were down 29% while sales only dipped 18% YOY.

That's staggering. Buyers and Sellers did not seem to be aligned in their estimation of the market: only 55% of homes sold for at or above list price while 45% needed a reduction or negotiation prior to accepting an offer. While this sounds balanced, it's out of the norm compared to our historic data.

Sammamish was the strongest overall area with a whopping 1217 sales (25% of the total 4954) and the lowest median price dip of 3%; $1,400,000 in 2023 v. $1,450,000 in 2022. Mercer Island was the hardest hit with a 12% drop in median price to $2,239,000—the lowest since 2020. Corrections are healthy for the long-term health of a real estate market. We're not sure how long this one will last; all signs are pointing to continued low inventory. It seems to be a game of chicken with the interest rates that could lead to massive pent-up demand.

If you're in the market for a new home in 2024, Q1 is a great time! Inventory is at its absolute 15 year low (6,140 listings compared to a high of 10,880 in 2010) which means we are poised for a market flip. If the cost of money goes down—as many experts are predicting—and more people decide to purchase, it could get very competitive very quickly! Beat the rush!
